

Crossing of the theatres.

THEATRE DARK THIS WEEK.

Personal Items and Gossip About Well Known Actors and Actresses, Etc.

The theatre will be dark this week, nothing being promised until the engagement of Richard Mansfield on Monday and Tuesday. He will appear in "Beau Brummell" and "Prince Karl."

Theatrical Gossip.

W. T. Carleton will take out an opera company next season.

Arthur Hensford, a distinguished English baritone, is in Chicago.

Mr. E. Emma Alhani has received a superb diamond decoration from the Sultan.

Madame Modjeska will spend the coming summer on her ranch in Southern California.

George Gould will spend $30,000 in remodeling his theatre.

In Athens, Greece, no opera or other performance is permitted in which women appear in elaborate costumes.

Estelle Clayton has written a play for Lotta, which is the popular actress proposes to produce next season.

Edgar Selten is at work on a new Irish comedy which will be produced next season. It has not yet been named.

Minnie Palmer is thinking of becoming a star again next year. In her old and only very great success, "My Sweetheart."

Henry E. Dixey will probably star next season in a new version of his play, which will be called "Adonis the Second."

London has forty-three theatres and 150 music halls, with a seating capacity of 250,000, giving employment to 12,000 persons.

Cyril Tyler, the wonderful boy soprano, will soon go to England, where he will sing only at private entertainments and residences.

Ada Dyer came over from London the other day on the Continent. She played successfully with Irving in his production of "Lear" at the Lyceum.

The ballet girls of London have formed a union and they announce that they mean to enforce their rights by resort to regular trade union tactics.

Edward "Evangelist" Rice's latest extravaganza, "1892," is booming along merrily at Palmer's New York theatre, where it is booked for a long run.

Most of the English critics declare that many of the epigrams in Oscar Wilde's new play, "A Woman of No Importance," are frightfully strained.

The beauty of slippers and the pomp of power, and all the other art and science engaged, are all like the inevitable hour.

The path of leading leads but to the stage.

"The Rivals" will be given in the United States and England next season by a company composed of Mrs. John Drew, McKee Rankin, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew and other well known actors.

Miss Fannie Steinhilber, a well-known contralto, is in Chicago, and will be heard shortly in a special role on the popular concert stage. The young lady is the daughter of Mrs. T. B. Steinhilber.

Frederick Ward's manager describes that pond-rider and ambulatory actor as a "placental sportsman." Other men are just plain fishermen. Mr. Ward has a summer hut at White Lake, Sullivan county.

Mr. Alexander Salvini and his manager, Mr. W. M. Wilkinson, will sail for Europe early in June. Mr. Salvini's next season opens in September, when he will present a new play entitled "The Son of Boethius."

Samuel P. Cox was reported so ill at the Westwyck hotel, Williamsburg, that his life was despaired of. Efforts will be made to remove him to Weehawken, Ky., where the invalid thinks his recovery will be certain.

Joseph Jefferson, whose Cincinnati papers reported not long ago as dying, is in perfect health and will make another tour in "Rip Van Winkle" and "The Two Orphans." He is also planning to give other all-time favorites.

The summer cast of All Baba will remain practically unchanged, everyone of the old favorites being retained, including Louise Elsing, Ida Muller, Frankie Raymond, Ada Deaves, Bessie Lynch, Nellie Lynch, Edwin Boyce, and others.

Mr. Rhea has sailed for Europe. She intends to spend a part of her holiday abroad scanning authorities in Paris for points in regard to the scenery and costumes of "The Queen of Sheba." The music scene, however, will be provided from the studios and costume rooms of New York.

Stuart Robson has always been noted for his persistency. When a boy he stuck to Robert Tombs, M. C., until the latter secured him a position as page in Congress. When a young man he was an ensign to the Baltimore theatre managers until they were forced to take him on as a utility man in their stock company, and during his partnership with Crane he is said to have had his own way in everything through his persistency.

Miss Ellen Terry finds that answering requests for autographs takes up too much of her time that she has determined to try to turn that time to profit for somebody. She has hit upon the idea of establishing an "autograph bank," a capital, and she is now in receipt of letters she receives from ladies, the signature is sent and with it a request for a few pence toward the autograph fund.

Miss Terry last week received a letter of sending $20 as a first installment to a hospital in the neighborhood of her residence at Earl's Court, London.

The title of Charles H. Hoyt's newest play is "The Milk-White Flag." Hoyt knows what the title means excepting, possibly, Mr. Hoyt. This piece will be produced in Boston at the Museum and will be seen in New York early in 1893.

After the run of "A Temperance Town," which is to succeed "A Trip to Chinatown," when that piece has run its preposterous run, present indications are that the "Trip" will last for a couple of years yet. Its popularity at the Madison square theatre does not wane.

Information comes from London that Miss Lottie Collins is having a well known London dramatist prepare for her a sketch in which she will show her versatility as an actress as well as her cleverness as a vocalist. She will sing a character song with eight strongly contrasting verses, only one of which will be devoted to "Ta-ra-ra," which classic she will hereafter sing only as an encore.

Miss Collins is under contract with the Boston Athenaeum Star Specialty company for an American tour, beginning in New York the latter part of August and extending to the Pacific coast and return.

Miss Robson's artificial leg will get her into the same trouble some night that the French one-armed tenor, Duprez, got into with his artificial arm. One night in the second act of "Traviata," at the Grand opera in Paris, Duprez, in giving his final adieu to Violetta threw his false arm upward with more force than it could stand, and the consequence was that it became dislocated. One of the springs broke, and the spectators were amazed to see the limb going around like a windmill. If May's leg would cut up such a trick it would require all the fire exits to empty the house in time for the panic that would certainly ensue.

Sarah Bernhardt has been making a sensation at Athens. After her performance in "La Dame aux Camellias," the king of Greece, who was in the audience, sent for her and personally thanked her. "Mme. Bernhardt," says a sympathetic correspondent, "had intended, after this performance, visiting the Acropolis by moonlight, but being fatigued, she postponed her visit till the following day. Then, dressed in black and carrying a large basket of white flowers, she repaired to her husband's tomb. After crossing herself and kneeling in prayer for some minutes, resting her head wearily on the marble, she reverently laid the flowers on Mr. Demas's grave, and as she went away it was observed that her eyes were suffused with tears. The late Mr. Demas's two brothers went to meet the actress as she landed from the steamer in Athens, and the populace turned out to give her a grand reception. Her visit has been altogether a personal, as well as an artistic, triumph."

The news that Miss Marie Wainwright is to retire from the stage at the close of the present season has been received with feelings of dissatisfaction by habitués of the theatre that are most complimentary to that actress. In reply to a question concerning the reasons that led her to determine upon taking this step, Miss Wainwright said: "Yes, I am going to leave the stage, and for several reasons. I have had my ambitions and they have been gratified in a greater degree than I could have reasonably hoped for. I wanted to play a leading part in Shakespearean comedy, and for two seasons I did so. Then I wished to see what I could do in romantic drama, and the success of 'Amy Robson' has shown that I can all have asked, and I do not wish it ever to be said of me that I lagged superfluous. But the main reason for my determination to abandon my chosen profession is of a domestic nature. My two daughters are at an age when they require a mother's care, and I intend to give it to them. I cannot do this and remain on the stage, so I have determined to give up the latter. My last performance will be given at Detroit in June."

Wonderland.

The Ideal Opera company will continue to present the popular "Mikado" until next Thursday. On that day another change in programme will take place, the company under the direction of Mr. Guy Latta will present Planquette's beautiful opera "The Hunchback of Notre Dame."

The performances given at this resort are presented in first-class style, every production is costumed correctly, and with careful stage mountings. Mr. Bert Havers and Miss Moore will appear in the leading roles and an enjoyable performance is promised.

Another of the popular concerts will be given this Sunday evening.

Croakers Avast!

If you labor under the delusion that Salt Lake is asleep step into the office of Fred A. Hale and Fins, A. Green, architects, Commercial building. Examine the plans of the Ricketts building which will contain fifteen stores and seventy offices. Sit in the den for the new State Street bank building. Are you interested in house building? Have you seen Mr. De Golyer's residence on the East Drive—now nearly completed? See Major Downer's new dwelling on Brigham street, which is now under roof? Or the two new houses in Popper place? We are proud to refer to them. This week contracts will be awarded for a brick terrace on Third South street, and a two-story pressed brick house in Darlington place. We account for the present activity in building by noting the fact that it is now a very cheap time to build. Competition in the building trades is exceptionally sharp this year.

A Sprinkling of Press Opinions.

Mr. Stutz in the character of Jean Renaud gave a grand exhibition of love, power and emotion. America boasts of no better actor in the part.

The Stutz company are artists, Indian and gentleman of refinement, whose social standing is undisputed.

"La Bastille," a grand play, the plot of which gave freedom to sixty million people—owned and played exclusively by the Stutz company.

Mr. Stutz is a realistic actor, his work being refreshing to the mind after a surfeit of our present day "kisses."

"La Bastille," unlike other plays is a realism—a reproduction of life during the days of the commune.
